“You can’t solve problems using the same thinking that created them” – Albert Einstein

Human problems need technical solutions, not political or financial ones. That’s why we are in such a mess today.

If we applied today’s science and technology to the redesign of civilisation, we could eliminate climate change, war, poverty, malnutrition and inequality and provide a high quality of living for every human being on Earth.

But we must first wake up to the need to remove the obsolete political and financial institutions that are such a deadly barrier to this progress. Join The Zeitgeist Movement to help our society grow up before it is too late by visiting our UK site:-
